++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain for most, occasionally heavy later on.

Today:
Bright and mostly dry for Shetland. Elsewhere cloudy with outbreaks of rain, turning heavy for many places later in the day, especially across the south. Milder than recent days for most, but colder across Shetland.

Tonight:
Heavy rain clearing eastward late evening. Turning colder once rain clears, with showery outbreaks of rain across the northwest. More persistent rain across Northern Isles and later northeast.

Wednesday:
A colder day with brisk northerly winds bringing rain then showers, wintry over high ground then increasingly to low levels. Becoming dry and sunny in the south in the afternoon.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Cold but mainly dry Thursday, snow spreading east later. Overnight rain and snow then mainly dry Friday, but rain or snow likely in the west later. Rain then showers Saturday.
